OBJECT LESSONS AT ALBANY.

own party as well as of the people thirteen years since a Republican State official of any kind took an elective office at the capital until yesterday, when the entire State administration, except the offices of Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, was handed over by Demo-Republicans Republicans. stepped into the offices of Secretary of State, Comptroller, Treasurer, Attorney-General and State Engineer and Surveyor, from which their party had been banished for over thirteen years. At the same time Boss Platt had pushed Boss Croker from his throne in the new Capitol, and to-day the Speakership, Clerkships and the whole fat pickings of the Senate and Assembly, together with the control of legislation, will be passed over to the fortunate party.

These object lessons of the political revolution seen at Albany also remind

There was no lack of merriment and at Washington yesterday, and the White House was a scene of more than usual brilliancy at the New Year's reception given by the President and Mrs. Cleveland. One feature of the coremony was the presence of a large number of handsomely dressed ladles who filled in the background behind the President and his wife and made a splendid display of costumes, jewels and beauty. Nothing of the "hard times" we hear so much about, espectally from the politicians, was discernible at the White House gathering.

It was democratic too, quite democratic in some things. A New Idea.

A new idea is to open the gores of a skirt about a foot from the bottom and insert little fan-like pieces of velvet to harmonize with the predominating material. The gores themselves are treated to a fold of velvet running over another length and giving a very handsome finish to a cloth costume

Creamed Lobster.

This is Marion Harland's receipt: The neat of one good-sized lobster, cut, not chopped, into inch-long bits, one cup of nilk, one cup of butter, two heaping teaspoonfuls of cornstarch rubbed into tablespoonful of butter. Put the milk and cream together, add a pinch of sods to prevent curdling, and make scalding ot in a farina kettle. While the milk is neating, season the lobster to taste with salt and cayenne pepper; stir it into the hot milk, add the cornstarch and butter and bring all to a boil, stirring all the while. When the milky part has become like thick cream, remove the kettle and long ostrich feathers covers the crown set aside the contents to cool. Just before lunch butter scallop shells, if you have them; if not, an ordinary pudding dish, and fill with the mixture. Sprinkle fine bread crumbs over the top, dot with bits of butter, set in the oven and
